

The island of sheep and sunshine

Perhaps you have paid a visit to Gotland – or seen pictures? Its position in the middle of the Baltic Sea has made the island one of Sweden's most popular tourist destinations. The many hours of sunshine, the sea and the beautiful beaches are all part of its attraction. The spectacular natural landscape never ceases to fascinate; wild and uninhabited in some places, populated by man and grazing animals in others. The soil, rich in lime and herbaceous plants, provides excellent pastureland for this breed of sheep with its origins on the island. As sheep farmers, we live close to our animals. A large part of our working day goes to watching over and caring for our sheep. The highlight of the year is when the lambs are born in April. Also round this time, the grass starts to grow and the ewes can be put out to graze with their young. The climate on Gotland, together with a careful breeding programme, ensures beautiful, durable skins.

Of all the breeds of sheep around the world, none can match the skin quality of the Gotland Pelt. The soft, silky, lustrous sheepskins are hard to resist, with their wonderful silvery-grey, beautifully formed curls. www.silvercurls.se

First Class Gotland Sheep Furs

SILVERCURLS
of Gotland

First Class Gotland Sheep Furs

SILVERCURLS
of Gotland

First Class Gotland Sheep Furs

Gotland

– a thing of beauty is a joy for ever

Here is a selection of our natural Gotland products. The aim is to provide you with the best our island has to offer. Then it's only a matter of furnishing your home in your own taste and style.

Gotland, the island of many silver treasures, is the home of the Gotland Pelt sheep with their unique curly grey fleece. The lambs – black at birth – run with their dams, grazing on pasture that is rich in lime and herbaceous plants. Raising these sheep and utilising their excellent meat, wool and skins is an intrinsic part of Gotland's cultural heritage. A comprehensive breeding programme has resulted in lustrous, silvery-grey skins with a clearly defined, even curl that is soft to the touch. There is great demand for our high quality sheepskins.

First Class Gotland Sheep Furs

SILVERCURLS
of Gotland